THE VIRDEN ADVANCE

VOLUME I. NO. 39. VIRDEN, MAN., THURSDAY, DEC. 10, 1885. G. J. ATKINSON, Proprietor. W. H. HALL, Editor and Manager.

PERSONALS.

King Milan is said to have the hot foot of any man in Europe. He is almost pretty deeply in Bulgarian clay.

Jenny Grenfell Jordan will contribute the romance in regard to Mrs. Beecher and the alleged visits paid to her during the late war.

Alboni recently sang before Queen Victoria, and had the shocker to break down in short—and one of Her Majesty's favorite works as a betrayal. Of course she took the hook.

Dr. Dio Lewis says "that wearing large, thick heavy boots and hats bound with steel rings will prove a woman's complexion." We fear it will require more than this to kill the rule of long bodies and unbecoming procedure.

Elder L. R. Hurst, grandfather of the noted Rebel Lish Hurst, the other day, quietly ran out of the world in 1822 B. P. Instance that the next year will witness symptoms of the coming crash, after which startling developments will follow rapidly, such as the burning to blood, the end of blubbing in light and a general derangement of things.

The Czar of Russia and Kaiser Franz Joseph of Austria had a fine time of Cookie. The bills for the entertainment of the Emperors and their suites have been sent in, without a night mistake, a distance of 232,347 silken, equal to forty-seven journeys around the earth.

The fashions, which rule supply upon the Queen of Sweden and her daughter, wear a very quaint uniform, consisting of jaunty, tailored coat and vest trimmed with gold lace. Their attire indicates a wonderful head-dress, consisting of a kind of outstretched shady hood with a long veil attached, the combined width of which is a little more than four feet.

Report comes from Turin of the death, aged 77 years, of Count Cavour, the friend of Cavour. For years he was the dispenser of that statesman's charities, and when the Count lay dying the priest went to the humble hut near Genoa to administer the last sacraments. It was his privilege then to leave relievers to the poor sister, Count's head to lie in state. "Brothers," he said, a free church in a free State."

Chester Alan Clark (CHESTER A. CLARK) lately surrendered the scene of the last fight in his guild. He has been in the city of Albany in the United Congress of New Haven and enjoyed the last service to the town in his case of the Governor. Only after submitting to a treatment of great's blood got a pardon in his hands at church and found the action up into the pulpit.

Miss Wendy Wright, born in 1809, and is said to be a most modest height, spare in chest and shoulders, but with shapely arms and hands. Her eyes are brown, with a peculiar lustre, and expressive; her hair is dark brown, and originally curled. Until quite late she was personally unknown as an artist. A promoter called "Lucas" in the Academy report to her lectures. Her acquaintance is rich, with a translucent bloom that appears on the cheeks under the influence of any unusual excitement. Her hair is of that lovely tone and shade of brown that is the very living incarnation of a natural nature. Throughout her entire person she manifests no affectation nor artificiality.

Col. Richard Wilde is a Boston boy by birth, the "Sweet Singer of Kentucky" by Matthew Arnold "an Emerson related, by the subject of very persons not to speak of the subject of the Wilde family, and a cousin of Mrs. Elizabeth Montague, who, while in Paris, was invited to hear Voltaire read his newly-written tragedy, which he subsequently threw into the fire, not thinking it a very great poet. When Voltaire had finished reading the last act he inquired of the lady what she had thought of the result. "Why should it pain me?" she said coldly, "I have not the honor to be one of the friends of M. de Voltaire."

Reported with a Vengeance.

One of the most extraordinary contests between two classes of people in the whole country is now progressing in Ireland, and is carried by the entire neighborhood of Lough Mask, in the county of Mayo. The people of the locality referred to are the tenantry of Colonel Hodgson and the Marquis of Sligo, and they say that the government, from the rank of Lord-ship that has been given to the police to be a source for the protection of the people, is now the source for the protection of the power of the country. This is easily accomplished when it is remembered that the landlords who are the owners of the former tenants had been evicted and it was only impossible to worry it, but even to so far as to prevent Mr. Bryant from the plaintiffs of the Virginia.

One of the oldest locks which this generation of lawyers has ever seen is the case of the Canada Land Co. vs. Corporation of Montreal, also entitled in England in the records of the Court Chancery, between the Canada Land Company, represented by the Right Honorable Lord Cairns, and the Montreal Corporation. At last, the demand is that an entire be ordered to meet the claimants and grant to a certificate of title.

One other part of this great case is that several stockholders of the company are dead lawyers, and that a new set of lawyers are likely to publish. Litigation which in the course of four years had the whole city, are eagerly making these demands in the interest of their clients.

Another curiosity in connection with the recently exposition is that the boy who was instrumental in getting up the exhibition of Ireland's fishing industry, for the reason that if the public are not allowed too visitors of those industries, it is necessary visitors largely.

Glaia, a delicate way of giving a young man a hint that he is eating too much for to treat him to grub.

At Acworth, Ga., a few days ago, two persons were in some fuss about the right of matrimony stood on a conference to be united.

The consumption of fish in Great Britain has considerably increased (at quite) by transporting to London the shoals of fish at the Fisheries Exhibition of 1883.

At last a Consul successfully has long lost at sea. The Baltic, on a voyage from Lisbon to Constantinople, struck on a rock off Malgion Oct. 27, and was totally wrecked. Four persons were lost.

At the recent meeting of the Royal Society in the London Tuberculosis Hospital establishment a fact not to last the prevention as to the value of alcohol in the treatment of disease. It was stated that in only three out of eighty-six cases of pneumonia treated in the hospital was alcohol given. In all other cases the mortality in the hospital since 1873 had been but five per cent. The number of patients treated since the commencement was 22,000.

AN EGYPTIAN ROMANCE.

A Story of Love and Wild Adventure, founded upon Startling Revelations in the Career of Arabi Pasha.

By the Author of "Hell, The Hustler," "The Red Spur," "The Russian Spy," Etc., Etc.

"It is certainly so. Hurst did so no doubt about it. All these accursed beasts to be cast down in Egypt. Bah!"

They bring with them, too, that same love, in order that they may violate their sacred Koran. Pooh! to which Salmon Bey added with an oath:

"No doubt about it, and what is worse, they not only carry these beasts here with them, but they bring their women with them without any shame. Faugh! Egypt will soon be full of them. Cursed dogs! Always ready to pay."

Rather than that the people should be driven to the Khedive, but they would rather pay the extra taxes than see the country overrun with Europeans. Perhaps it is as well that they have been taxed, and their condition is the worse for it.

"I don't know, Salmon Bey, but I think Allah may, would lay down his very life for a kind master. By the Prophet, would that my master were here! It was he who saved my life, and I would not see that one of the accursed people, and Tewfik Pasha at once made answer:

"That is because you are many Moslems. There are hardly twenty Moslems in Egypt, and still is a petty prince. They are slaves of Egypt. Tewfik Pasha knows even as well as I do. Let a Turkish officer report that he will, yet his council will protect him from the consequences, by which the Khedive is governed by a majority of infidels."

"Tewfik is true, for his life is in peril by the over 1000, but by those of the men who have injured him, and by others; there are those who would gladly see him dead, for they know that so long as he lives they will not be free. Even now, my master has not yet received the reward of his services, and Tewfik Pasha at once made answer:

"That is because you are many Moslems. There are hardly twenty Moslems in Egypt, and still is a petty prince. They are slaves of Egypt. Tewfik Pasha knows even as well as I do. Let a Turkish officer report that he will, yet his council will protect him from the consequences, by which the Khedive is governed by a majority of infidels."

"Tewfik is true, for his life is in peril by the over 1000, but by those of the men who have injured him, and by others; there are those who would gladly see him dead, for they know that so long as he lives they will not be free. Even now, my master has not yet received the reward of his services, and

By Allah and the Prophet, where is the use of discussing these matters further? Did we come here on the business for which we were sent? No, no, but we are by no means free from difficulties, and the greatest of these is Mr. Hurst, who has by some means escaped from the prison, and is now at large, with a number of men who are devoted to him, and who would lay down their lives for him. Should they succeed in finding him, they would not only set him free, but they would kill him. Should they succeed in finding him, they would not only set him free, but they would kill him. Should they succeed in finding him, they would not only set him free, but they would kill

Mr. Hart replaces Mr. Lawson as leader of local Optionists.

ACROSS THE RIVER.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

The threshing is about wound up, and so is the grub in some localities, but the threshers still cling to the rule, "You no grubee, no threshee," just like Milieum men.

We would like to know why some of our young men wore such long faces after our social. Surely they were not disappointed in their partners.

POINDEXTER.

OAK LAKE.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

The weather has been colder for some days past than we have experienced this season.

It is rumored that Robert Lang, Jr., intends going to Brandon shortly and that he will have to pay for two tickets on the return journey, the extra ticket being required for one of Oak Lake's fair maidens.

Farmers are still coming in from far and near with grain, some loads having arrived lately from the Antlers, via Virden, on the one hand, and from east of Griswold on the other, the prices in some instances having reached 67 cents per bushel. We are thus getting a fair share of this trade, which will doubtless continue provided the Railway Company keep our buyers supplied with cars to ship the grain east. Some complaints have been made on this score already, but it is hoped we have heard the last of it.

The branch of the Farmers' Union formed here nearly two years ago has been reorganized and set in proper working order. The chief speaker at the meeting held here last week was Mr. Bailey, from Brandon, who spoke for fully an hour, showing what the Union really is. The fact that almost all present joined before leaving the meeting shows that Mr. Bailey's remarks did not go for nothing. Towards the close of the meeting a discussion took place regarding railway rates, etc., when it was pretty clearly shown that although the meeting as a whole was in full sympathy with the Railway Company, yet a reduction of rates is required to enable the farmers to successfully carry on farming operations, and by granting this the Company will reap the greater benefit financially. A complete board of Directors was appointed with Mr. D. Cameron as President. Messrs. Marion, Gillespie and Haslip having been appointed delegates to attend the forthcoming convention at Winnipeg next week the meeting closed, all being apparently satisfied with what had passed.

WARD NO. 5.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Messrs. Lawson & Spiers are busy threshing in this neighborhood. They report grain in this district not nearly so badly frozen as it is further north.

The regular meeting of the Wallace Literary and Musical Club will be held on Saturday night next. The program will be equal, if not superior, to any of the former ones. Come one, come all.

The farmers in this locality have been heretofore noted for their honesty, but I am sorry to say the tide has turned. A daring robbery was committed on Friday night—a hen roost robbed and a cow milked. It is well known that Mr. Simpson has a choice variety of fowls, so a party living not a hundred miles from here, came on Friday night last and took fifteen of the best of them, without acquainting the owner of his intentions. If sufficient evidence can be procured to convict the guilty parties they will be prosecuted to the utmost extremity of the law.

Mr. G. S. Simpson has had rather bad luck in the stock line this fall. As the cold weather is fast setting in he thought it would be advisable to draw up a supply of wood for the days of cold and storm. He set about it one fine morning last week—hitched up his oxen to the waggon, took his pet dog, and started for the bush which is about eight miles distant. His oxen are like a great many more of their species—very slow in motion—and Mr. Simpson, wishing to urge his team to a faster gait, took up his gun and struck one of them with it, which caused the gun to discharge and tear a terrible gash in the animal's quarter. It is natural to suppose that the ox increased their speed to such an extent that it made it extremely uncomfortable for Mr. Simpson, who was sitting on the front bolster of the waggon. However, he succeeded in getting them stopped before any further damage was done. He then repaired to Mr. T. Cusack's place where he got medicine and dressed the wound. Strange to say the ox walked home apparently none the worse, and is doing remarkably well.

Meeting of Ratepayers in Virden.

The adjourned meeting of ratepayers to consider the advisability of building elevators, was held last Saturday afternoon at the Virden House, Reeve McDougall presiding over a large attendance.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and adopted the Secretary read the following report of the joint committee of Virden and Elkhorn.

"The committee beg to report to the general meeting that they have met the committee appointed by the Elkhorn general meeting and the following scheme was formulated for your consideration with the approval of all the committee: That there shall be one Company formed (the shares of which to be $1) to erect one elevator at Virden and one at Elkhorn; each to be of equal capacity and value. The following figures were put forward and approved of as an approximate cost of running this elevator: Will cost 40 days at $250 per day, $10,000; insurance on $40,000, 1 per cent ($400), engineer and manager, $70 per month for 9 months, $675, interest and sinking fund, for 20 years, $822, wear and tear $300. Total, $12,210. One hundred thousand bushels so to run will bring in 24 days, 4 days supposed idle. It is expected the elevator could be started for $8,000 each. The Reeve produced a plan of an elevator showing two receiving hoppers and seven bins. It is proposed to issue Debentures to the value of about $12,000, to be guaranteed by the Municipality and secured on the property and the guarantee of the Company, to raise funds to build the elevator. This to be repaid in 20 years as above stated.

(Signed) A. G. McDOUGALL,
C. J. THOMSON,
T. HOPKINS,
WM. H. CURRIE,
A. D. JOLLIFFE."

After a lengthy discussion upon the report—several gentlemen present advocating that two Companies be formed instead of one—the following motions were moved and adopted:

Palmer—Scallion—That the report of the committee be adopted, as regards building the two elevators—one at Virden and one at Elkhorn—and carrying on the whole concern under one Company.

Thomson—Hopkins—That the committee be re-appointed to visit the Elkhorn meeting, and that this meeting adjourns until a later date to hear the report.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE FARM.

Winter-Feeding Sheep.

Upon the subject of "Winter-feeding sheep the "American Agriculturist" Farmers' Ready Reference and Year Book of Facts" says:

"There is a wide difference of opinion as to what is the most profitable way to feed sheep, and that there would be plenty well enough on bean-stalks and bean-straw only, and that they would do very well on meal and cornstalks, and good hay and bran and breeding ewes pen with other lines of stock, and that sheep and lambs will thrive well on [illegible] hay; we are ready to the minority and rapidly becoming [illegible].

"We have often allowed sheep to pick all the leaves and fine tender parts of clover from the mower portions, and to run over to the house and stable in the yard, where, by the way, they will do much grazing by day and night, and after the [illegible] in the pens thereto. Early cut Timothy hay well cured, is very much relished by them and will be eaten up quite clean. Sheep like to have the head of the manger, [illegible] slightly. For short [illegible] grain in the pens, but they should not be expected to eat the coarse stalks.

"To be sure, there is [illegible] and [illegible] sheep need a little grain for winter. They may pull through without, but they will do [illegible] better with it. Especially the ewes with [illegible] lambs. Very little grain will suffice. We need be loath to mind that we owe with lamb is growing, and that the [illegible] of the lamb is growing, growing organisms that the mother-ewe being fed. This double strain upon her system must be met and supported by extra [illegible]. These demands upon her vitality only a certain fixed capacity, and hence [illegible] the nutriment for the [illegible] of her own and only will [illegible] the [illegible] and appearance [illegible].

The Water Used by Animals.

[illegible] plants, and the following from the Kansas Farmer is [illegible] to the point. The value of the crop of the country depends to a large extent upon the supply of water that can be given to it; the amount of [illegible] is not greater. Horses [illegible] water [illegible] a day, cattle [illegible] gallons, sheep [illegible] gallons, and hogs [illegible] gallons. Some persons think that [illegible] is lost [illegible] large are given, or rather [illegible] to the animal. Experiments have been made to determine the question [illegible] whether [illegible] of animal [illegible] is [illegible] by the [illegible] of water [illegible] and it has been found that [illegible] will drink [illegible] water, because the [illegible] urgently [illegible] that they are not [illegible] allowed by [illegible] of drink as are [illegible] animals. But [illegible] ought to know, and certainly we are not knowing, that [illegible] is just as important [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
